WE DEDICATE THIS WORK TO THE MEMORY OF LYDIA WATSON,
LATE OF LEICESTER, MASS.

" Bending beneath the weight of one hundred and two long, weary years,
Spent with the noble strife of a victorious life,
We watched her fading heavenward, through our tears.

Teaching us how to seek the highest goal,
To earn the true success, to live, to love, to bless,
And make death proud to take a royal soul."—

PREFACE.

With a desire to know something of our early ancestors, we began a search for records and became very much interested in the work, but found that much valuable history had been lost, and we realized that more would share the same fate without some one gathered it together and put it into form for security and reference. Thus we were led to compile and publish the History and Genealogy, that others might have the benefit of our researches. In preparing a work like this it is not an easy task to find all one could wish that would be of interest to the descendants, for records have not been fully kept. The records of the events of their time and lives have been taken from town records, genealogies, manuscripts, newspapers, letters, deeds, dates from headstones. We realize that the work is not as complete as we might wish, some moving to places unknown to us and unable to be found by the means we have put forth.

The records of each branch of the family have been brought down to the date of this work, or until death or inability to find further records of them.

In the volume will be found blank pages for family records that each may, if they wish, keep their direct branch complete. The value of such records will be realized if in future years any one should see fit to complete and enlarge the work.

Our thanks are due to descendants who have kindly filled out blanks, giving us access to and copies of manuscripts. Mr. Asa Watson Armington, late of Providence, R. I., in 1854, at the age of sixty-three years, prepared a manuscript history of the early Watson families of the branch to which he belonged. We are indebted to his daughter, Miss Mary Watson Armington, for the use of the valuable papers. The compilers are grateful to Miss Anna J. Bemis for valuable assistance in copying records and assisting in the preparation of the work for the press. We submit the work to the descendants trusting it will be a book of information to many and useful for reference to all.

THE COMPILERS.

THE COAT OF ARMS.

It is with pride and pleasure that we are able to furnish a copy of Arms belonging to the family. Thanks are due from the descendants to one who has had a watchful eye over the original for many years, Miss Sophia Studley of Cambridgeport, Mass.

We are also grateful to the present owner, Miss M. A. Burrage, a niece of Miss Studley. By her kindness we are able to furnish an exact reproduction in color of the Coat of Arms as brought to this country by the first family. Miss Studley's mother was a Watson, her father was Matthew Watson who was the son of Samuel Watson, the second son of Matthew Watson, the first of our family to come to this country. Samuel was then about twenty years old.

Matthew Watson, first, as has been stated, was killed by the falling of a tree the first year of his residence in Leicester, Mass. His oldest son, Matthew, went to Barrington, R. I., soon after the sad event, so that naturally the Arms were cared for by the oldest son at home, he being Samuel. Then it passed from one to the other in his branch of the family.

The Coat of Arms is a double one, consisting of the Arms of husband and wife, her maiden name being Gray. We have not found as yet what Watson married a Gray, or just what year the Arms were granted. As regards the title, Baron of Rockingham, we have some facts of interest. The ancient families of Watson flourished for several ages in the Counties of Rutland, Northampton and Cambridge in England. One Edward Watson of Lydington, County Rutland, lived in 1460, and had fifteen children. His eldest son and heir died in 1530, leaving a wife, one daughter, and a son Edward Watson, Esq., of Rockingham Castle, County of Northampton. [Burke Extinct Peerage 1886.] Again Edward Watson, 2nd Baron of Rockingham, married Lady Anne Wentworth, eldest daughter of the Earl of Strafford, Charles the I. Deputy of Ireland. By this marriage there were two sons, Lewis Watson who succeeded to his father's title, Baron of Rockingham, and Thomas, who took his mother's maiden name of Wentworth. The son of the last named, also, Thomas Watson Wentworth, was Baron of Malton, Viscount Higham, and Earl of Malton. His Uncle Lewis Watson dying without issue, the Earl of Malton became the Baron of Rockingham, and on the 19th of April, 1746, Marquis of Rockingham, his youngest, and as it proved, only surviving son, was Charles Watson Wentworth, 2nd Marquis of Rockingham. He was born 19th of March, 1730. Was made Prime Minister of England in 1765, taking Edmond Burke as his private secretary. [Burke wrote his epitaph].

The notorious Stamp Act was repealed by his ministry, he acting with Chatham against Lord North, who provoked the American Colonies to revolt. By the enmity of the King he was driven from power, but became Minister again, a short time after. He died July 1, 1782. [From Edinboro Review, Jan to Apr., 1852.]

Descendants of this Watson Wentworth family built and occupied "Old Wentworth Hall," a noted place at Little Harbor, near Portsmouth, New Hampshire. [See Drake's "Nooks and Corners of the New England Coast."]

One of the early Watson families of Leicester, Mass., had a son named Charles Wentworth Watson, born Sept. 21, 1786. He was a grandson of the first Samuel Watson, who as before stated was a young man of about twenty years when he came to this country, presumably he instilled family facts into his son's mind, thus the grandson being named Charles Wentworth Watson, after the before mentioned Charles Watson Wentworth, 2nd Marquis of Rockingham and Prime Minister of England. But if not in line with this family would infer that they were one of the branch of the Baron of Rockingham who had fifteen children, and of which we have no account except the first and oldest son. The family may have had the Arms copied and handed down without being differenced, after their going to Ireland and before coming to America.

THE WATSON FAMILY.

THE WATSON FAMILY.

“The name Watson is derived from Wat, the nickname, or abbreviation from Walter, with the termination ‘son,’ which together signify the son of Walter, a personal name of Teutonic origin, which was not introduced until the Conquest.” The first learned of the family is this:—

It seems that during the persecutions of the Puritans or Non-Conformists in England, during the reign of James I., that many families left England and settled in the north of * Ireland, where more toleration then existed. Among these families were the Watsons, where they resided during the reign of James I., Charles I., Cromwell, James II., William and Mary, and Anne. After the expulsion of James II., and in his attempt to reduce Ireland with his French Army and the Catholic population of Ireland, and while marching to besiege Derry (in 1688 or '9) inhuman barbarities were committed on the Protestant inhabitants, either to gratify revenge or amuse his soldiery, such as piercing little children through the body and suspending them on their pikes, in their death screams writhing in their agony and bleeding before their parents.

Among these scenes of horror was a family by the name of Orr,† of note and respectability. The head of the father of this family was severed from his body and carried on a pike, and his family, with hundreds of others, were driven before this murderous array up to the walls of Derry, as a terror to the inhabitants within. There, suffering cold and hunger by day and night, those having friends within the city were taken over the walls at night. This family lay under the walls three days before they could gain admittance.

* The Watsons may have gone, at this time, to Scotland, and from there to Ireland. Some records state that the family were of Scotch parentage, others that they were of English, and the coat-of-arms brought with them would substantiate the belief in the latter.

† He was the father of Mary Orr, who was 12 years old at this time, afterwards wife of Matthew Watson, the first of our branch, with his children, to come to America.

Here famine and pestilence did their work in this overcrowded place; starvation continued until the fleet with supplies broke through the obstruction of the harbor. This soon put an end to the war and established the new government of William and Mary.

Whether the Orr family consisted of more than the father, mother and daughter, we are uninformed.

Here is the first mention of our progenitor, Matthew Watson [Note *1], then a young man, and without doubt, was among the brave defenders of this place — as history says that the young men of the city were the first to defend it, and that they first shut the gates against James II. and his army of miscreants, and mounted the walls in its defence.

It was here, during the siege, that Matthew Watson met with Mary Orr and her mother. He entered into business as a manufacturer and dealer in linen, yarn and cloth. He purchased flax, employed females to spin and weave it, whether within the city or adjacent we do not know, but it was with success.

Again troublesome times came on, owing to the increase of the Catholic population, insomuch that it became dangerous and difficult for a Protestant to be out in the evening without being armed with a club or some other effectual weapon of defence. Therefore these times and troubles were the inducements for this family to emigrate, (as did many others).

We find them in Boston, Mass., in the year 1718 [Note *2] with their family of seven sons and two daughters.

They suffered much from loss of property on the voyage, but of what, or in what manner, we cannot say. Now an entire change of employment must take place, from a linen Note *1. In all manuscripts and records the name is given as Matthew, with one exception. The author of that manuscript learned of the error and corrected it in a later manuscript. The author of the book "Historical Sketches of Barrington, R. I.," had access to the uncorrected manuscript, and called the name, Robert. In 1729 the Leicester Town Records record 102 acres, belonging to Matthew Watson heirs. In the same records and the same date, 108 acres to Matthew Watson, but this was the oldest son, who removed to Barrington, R. I.

There was an Oliver and Jonathan Watson in Leicester, before Matthew and his family went there. They may have been his brothers or near relatives, but we are unable to state. This Oliver died early. James Freeland, of Oxford, Mass., was administrator of his estate, account dated 29th of July, 1746.

Note *2. Nearly all the manuscript records state that the family came to America at this time. That Oliver Watson was born during the sea voyage; he was born 1718. An article published in a newspaper in 1801, at Warren, R. I., states that they came to America in 1712. [See copy of newspaper article in another part of the book]. However that may be, it would simply change the birthplace of the two youngest children.

dealer to a tiller of the soil, and for which he came somewhat prepared, bringing all sorts of seeds.

The first season he removed a few miles from Boston to Framingham, where he planted for that season only (1719). But not contented in that place we soon find him, in 1720, true to his Anglo-Saxon propensities, his face turned Westward in search of more land. He purchased a right through the town of Leicester, Mass., where he removed his children and soon began clearing his land and planting, and here, sad to relate, during the first year of this settlement, he was instantly killed by the falling of a tree upon him, which he and his eldest son were engaged in cutting down, bereaving his family of their head, stay, guide and support in this the time of their greatest need of his succor, counsel and advice. Yet it seems that this mother was a woman possessed of uncommon fortitude and strong powers of mind, and nerved herself for the double duties that now devolved upon her in the sole care of training and providing for this large family.

Now mark her unmoving faith and trust in the Almighty Ruler of the universe. On the morning after this fatal casualty she called her family as usual around her and thus addressed them: "My children, your father now lies dead in the next room and cannot join us in our morning worship, yet it must never cease so long as I live, for never since your father and I have lived together has this service ceased, and must always continue;" and handing the Bible to her eldest son, a young man, said: "You are the eldest, therefore it devolves upon you to take your father's place." He then read to them portions of Scripture which she had selected, and then they all knelt together while he prayed with them; and which duty it is said he never neglected through life, showing the faithful training of his parents.

This is a brief history of the first parents. The individual history of the head of each family will be found in the regular genealogic records.

They did much during their lives for the advancement of the nation, then in its infancy. And to understand what their lot was it is well to review a little history of the town at this time. The records of the settlers indicate that our fathers found the Indians and the wild beast which he hunted. The arrow-head, the wide stone axe, chisel, etc., have been occasionally dug up in their former haunts. The annoyance from noxious animals and venomous reptiles continued to a late period. The records show, as late as 1740, the employment of pitfalls and other means for destroying wolves, and the payment of bounties for the killing of rattlesnakes.

In 1722 a company of men were stationed in the town of Leicester, Mass., to guard its inhabitants from the miscreant Indians. The roads were mere trails through the woods. The road laid out by the town in November, 1724, known as the "Charlton road," is of interest to us. "Begins at a black oak near the house of Thomas Hopkins; thence to three chestnuts; thence to a red oak; thence to a clump of red oaks; thence to a red oak; thence to a black oak; thence to a gray oak; thence to a large black oak; thence to another large black oak, near a slowe westerly of the Widow Watson's house; thence to a young red oak; thence to another red oak tree; thence to a black oak; thence to another black oak; and so on to a small white oak, a black oak, 'just up the pitch of the Livermore Hill,' a black oak; 'thence to a pitch pine on the top of the hill,' and continuing from one tree to another until it comes to two pines—and so on the road was laid out three rods wide."

Mr. Matthew Watson built his house in 1720. He was probably the first to introduce the potato into this section, as the following incident would indicate: A neighboring farmer having heard that the new settlers had the potatoes, and never having seen the article, went to them for the purpose of gratifying his curiosity, but as all they had were planted he was told that if he would come in the autumn he would then see them. At the appointed time he came and was shown a heap of potatoes just dug. Having selected one and carefully cleaning it of the soil, cut a mouthful and after masticating it awhile threw it away in disgust, saying: "If that is what you call a potato, I had rather have a turnip."

The first settlers were farmers, and like others of their class generally in New England, the clothing of their families was principally of domestic manufacture. Probably no home was destitute of a spinning-wheel or a loom, and few families who did not understand more or less of the method of dyeing the fabrics which they wove. Cotton was unknown till a comparatively recent date, and few could indulge in the luxury of "India cotton" clothes, for which they must pay some four or five shillings a yard, that would not now sell for as many cents, if it would sell at all. They could clip from their own flocks the wool they consumed, and could raise the flax, which they understood how to work into linen of the purest white. It was from home-made fabrics wrought from these that the diligent housewife prepared the wardrobe of the family.

Second Generation.

Matthew Watson [2], soon after the death of his father at Leicester, Mass., left his home and sought employment with a gentleman near Boston, where it is said he continued for some time; and of this gentleman and his wife he always spoke in the most ardent and affectionate terms, for their interest manifested in his welfare. For previous to this he had lacked the privilege of schools, and with this family he learned arithmetic and much valuable information in which he was deficient. He probably learned the art of brick-making here, and soon after settled in Barrington, R. I., where he commenced the business, which he pursued with success for more than half a century, at first on the land of John Reed, Esq.

Before the marriage of Matthew to Miss Reed, her parents, particularly her father, was much opposed to his visiting his daughter, and he was treated very coldly. Matthew, therefore, asked the Squire for an explanation, and stated that his intentions in visiting his daughter were honorable, and that he had always entertained for him and his family the highest regard, and besides, that ever since he had lived near him he had done him many kind favors; that his feelings had often been wounded by the cool and neglected manner in which he had been treated. He regretted that it should be so, as it was his wish to make his daughter his wife. This appeared to have the effect he wished for, and the objections were withdrawn. After the marriage did take place he enjoyed, in every respect, their esteem and confidence. He purchased the John Reed property from the Reed family, consisting of about one hundred acres, and made additions until, as has been stated, he owned two or three thousand acres. But during this time the neighbors could not (as Mr. Watson expressed it) see how that beautiful girl could throw herself away upon that "poor little Irishman." He said, although born in Ireland, he was not one any more than a colt foaled in a cow stable was a calf, and as to being poor he then had at interest £1,400 and owned a part of the home farm in Leicester, Mass.; yet no one in that town knew of it except himself and Bethiah, his intended wife.

Mr. Watson was probably one of the first to introduce tea-drinking in Barrington. He also carried the second set of China there. Miss Kent, of East Providence, has a few pieces of this set, now about 145 years old. A neighbor, Mr. Hooker Low, had a short time previous, carried a set home from the same place. Mr. Watson purchased one-half pound of tea and after he arrived home that afternoon they were for the first time to drink tea, little thinking that they were then to set the example for a great nation to imitate, but like many other things that astonish mankind, it was but a small beginning. They soon found that the first beginning must meet with some difficulty, for behold they had forgotten to buy that great indispensable, the tea-kettle, this therefore, must be dispensed with and the dinner pot was then furnished in which the water was heated the first time. The next time Mr. Watson went to Newport, the tea-pot was purchased and brought home. It was some time before the daughters liked it and was used on Sunday afternoons only. Mr. Watson's improvements on his farm were continued until within a few years of his death. While setting out an orchard after he was eighty years old, he was accosted by a neighbor (not bye-the-bye an industrious one) who asked him why he should take pains to set an orchard at his time of life, saying he was a fool to do it, he would never live to have any good from it. His answer was, "If I am a fool, I am not a hog, for it will benefit some one." Yet he did live for more than twenty years after this, and partook of its fruits, and often mentioned the circumstance.

The most noted dwelling in Barrington, [Note *3] is the "Old Watson House." It was built of brick, made by hand upon the "plantation" north of it. Its mortar was mixed with lime obtained by burning the heaps of oyster shells that numberless generations of Indians had left scattered about. Matthew Watson was its builder and it was finished A.D. 1745. The house as first constructed, was one of the "lean-to's," so dear to the hearts of the early settlers of Massachusetts. Two stories high in front; in the rear its roof terminated in a wood pile. Fire caused the removal of the second story some time before the year 1849. It was one of the first dwellings of brick erected in the country, and was an unusually elegant mansion for its day. Its

Note *3. A book, "Picturesque Rhode Island," by J. A. & R. A. Read, has an illustration of the house, and states that it was built in 1660. A few newspaper articles make the same error, the writers having been misinformed. Matthew Watson's daughter told her grandson, Asa Watson Armington, and he so recorded the statement in his records, at an early date, that she was ten years old when the house was built; she was born 1735. Further, Matthew Watson purchased the property of William Read,† deed dated April 5, 1742, he having leased part of the farm of his wife's family for a few years previous, to carry on his brick making. Azarikam Pierce deeded this property to John Read, deed dated July 10, 1705. John Read deeded it to his son William, deed dated Jan. 24, 1737-8, and he to Matthew Watson, as stated, April 5, 1742. Mr. Watson could not have built his house before he owned the property, much less, to have built it thirty-six years before his birth. There was an old house attached to or very near this one, built of wood, that was probably built near or about the time, that has been erroneously stated that the brick one was. We refer to the matter so fully that those who may wish to know may be informed. Record of Deeds are to be found at Taunton, Mass.

† Spelled Reed and Read.

hearths, chimney-jambs and mantles were all of imported marble. Quaint Dutch tiles, imported from Amsterdam, were freely used for decoration. The house is at the date of this work standing. Upon one of its floors was laid the first woolen carpet known in Barrington. The first wall paper seen in the town was also hung in the same room. Matthew Watson, the builder, was born in the seventeenth, lived through the eighteenth, and died in the nineteenth century at the age of 107 years. Almost to the very last he retained his muscular vigor. When 100 years old he was able to place his foot in the stirrup and mount his horse with more than the ordinary ease of a man of fifty. He amassed a great property for that time amounting to $80,000. His life was one of great energy, activity and usefulness, and worthy of imitation. He sustained the office of a Justice of Peace for many years, and was one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas for Bristol County. He was a member of the Congregational Church at Barrington between seventy and eighty years. He was always a friend to the friendless, assisted the young men who were virtuous and frugal. His wealth and hospitality were alike proverbial. His integrity he held fast throughout his life and in a great and good old age descended to his grave in peace "like a shock of corn fully ripe."

Oliver Watson [10] was born during the sea voyage of his parents from Ireland to America. He spent the early part of his life in Leicester. In 1740 he purchased a farm of about 200 acres, in the westerly part of the town, of Jeremiah Whittemore, previously owned by Nathaniel Cunningham, a wealthy merchant of Cambridge, Mass. This property was included in the town of Spencer by the incorporation of the town May 14, 1753. It is the first farm in Spencer, just over the Leicester line on the "old post road." Mr. Watson was a valued and influential citizen of the town in its early growth, as the following extracts from "Draper's History of Spencer," indicates.

"A church was organized May 17, 1744, and the same day a covenant was subscribed by Deacon Archibald Thomas, Deacon Oliver Watson and others." The following method in 1771, was organized for the disposition of the pews; those whose valuation in real estate stood the highest had first choice of them at an appraised value. Deacon Oliver Watson ranked third in valuation. He was a deacon of the church for many years. During the agitations and struggles previous to the Revolution, there were but few postoffices, and at that time it became necessary to have some confidential persons appointed in every town, to whom communications could be made with safety and effect. Hence, originated the "Committee of Correspondence." This committee was soon recognized by the Legislature as of legal and effectual authority, and important duties devolved upon them by the General Court. They were, in fact, the directors and managers of the great political drama which was in preparation for general action through the country, and we owe much to this little band of patriots who spent many anxious days and nights, who freely contributed their aid, and many of them their blood, to effect and secure to themselves and their children the blessings of liberty. Mr. Watson served on this committee the year 1775. He was chosen at a meeting of the towns of Leicester, Spencer and Paxton as one of a committee to draft instructions to their representatives. The meeting being called to take into consideration, as they expressed it, "the melancholy situation of our public affairs as this critical conjuncture." At a subsequent meeting of the same town, Mr. Watson was chosen to attend a congress which was holden at Watertown, Mass., May 31, 1775. The inhabitants of Spencer held a meeting July 17, 1775, and decided for the first time to assume the right of an independent town, and chose Oliver Watson their representative. He was instructed to communicate to the General Court the vote of the town, June 24, 1776, "that should Congress think it expedient to declare the colonies independent of the kingdom of Great Britain, we do hereby freely, fully and solemnly, engage with our lives and fortunes, to support Congress in such a measure." Mr. Watson was the representative at Congress when "By a unanimous vote, July 4, 1776, declared the colonies to be free, sovereign and independent States." He was also representative in the years 1777 and 1780. He was selectman of Spencer in the years 1755-56-57, '60 to '67 inclusive, '71 and '78. Town Treasurer, 1757 to 1768 inclusive. Assessor, 1755-56-57, '60 to '67 inclusive, '71 and '78. He was a patriot of the Revolution and had three sons in service.

She was born Jan. 5, 1787; died April 11, 1889, aged 102 years. He owned a farm and wire factory. The motor-power used for drawing the wire, being the old water-wheel, the water supply was from what is now known as Shaw Pond, from which Spencer now receives its supply. He at one time owned nearly all the land about the reservoir. The exact time he continued in the wire business we are unable to tell — some time before 1824 and quite a few years after, for we find a bill of sale for the use of a patent dated Nov. 20, 1824. He was to have use of said patent for fourteen years, to be used in his factory, he not to employ more than two persons besides himself, or three in all. We believe he used it full time. After selling this property for a tannery, he continued to draw wire in a building on the home farm in Leicester, on the "old post road," near the Spencer line. He was Highway Surveyor, Selectman, and a man held in high esteem by all who knew him. He was Deputy Master of the band attached to the company of the Massachusetts Militia. The Massachusetts shield and plume which he wore in service are well preserved and prized by the descendants. There are official papers notifying him to appear for service, with his musicians, dated 1811 and 1824, and an appointment dated 1822, copies of which we insert below:

To Mr. ROBERT WATSON:—

You are hereby requested to notify the musicians whose names are here under written to appear at James Draper's, Inn-holder, in Spencer, on Tuesday, the 23 inst., and likewise at William Denny's, Inn-holder, in Leicester, Wednesday, the 24 inst., at both places at precisely at one o'clock A. Lydia (Watson) Watson [137], Leicester, Mass., lived to the remarkable age of 102 years, 3 months, and 6 days. Her life had always been an active one. She was the mother of and cared for eleven children. She was a member of the first Congregational Church the greater part of her life and attended worship until her advanced age would not permit. Sunday was a sacred day to her, a devoted reader of the bible. When her sight would not allow her to read the bible, she would read portions of scripture in large type from a chart, pointing to the lines with a pencil that she might not lose the place. She was endowed by nature with remarkable physical vigor, but it seemed as if her serenity of mind and happy disposition had added very truly to her length of days. In 1887 her one hundredth birthday was celebrated at Leicester by her relatives and friends from far and near. She received in the parlors of the Leicester Hotel. The reception lasted nearly two hours. About 230 persons were present, 178 of the the number signed an autograph album. Dinner was served in the hotel dining-room, Mrs. Watson occupying a seat at the head of the table. It was an enjoyable affair long to be remembered. Friends felt that it would not be probable that she would live to see another birthday, but she did add two years to the century of her life, welcoming friends and relatives to her side.

Jan. 5, 1889, she reached the very remarkable age of 102 years, "Older than the Constitution, yet hale and hearty." She said to a gentleman, "I feel that I have erred so many times, and God in his goodness has spared my life, that I wish to urge lives of sobriety and industry to all." Three months and six days after her 102nd birthday, she passed peacefully away, willing and ready to meet her Master. All that knew her speak pleasant words of her loving, kind heart and true life. To know her was to love her. The aged people and the number of friends that attended her funeral attested their love for her.

She was always in her place in church as long as her health permitted. During her nearly twelve years of blindness no one ever heard a murmuring or complaining word but that it was all right, wisely ordered by her Master. She had the gift of making and keeping friends, and they were many. She had perfect trust in her God and her Saviour in all the afflictions which she had been called to pass through, The last three weeks of her life were full of pain and suffering but the same perfect trust and submission remained to the end." From "In Memoriam," written by her daughter, Mrs. Westcott.

Robert Watson [690], Leicester, Mass. From the New Year's sermon, by Rev. A. H. Coolidge, preached in Leicester, Jan. 4, 1891: "On the birthday of our national independence, our brother, Deacon Robert Watson, became a free citizen of the New Jerusalem. Lowly in spirit, with a humble appreciation of himself, with none of the extraneous advantages on which many depend, he was yet a pillar in the temple of our God. He was endowed with the power of a loving heart, of a prayerful devotion, of unbending rectitude and fidelity to his convictions, of readiness to act, and of rare sincerity and felicity in the expression of his religious thought and feeling. Our loss is great, but we will not envy the gain of that realm, where his natural and spiritual gifts find broader opportunity, and where, doubtless, God wants them more than ever here, where in such a time, we so much need such men.

* The first article states, four brothers and one sister, the second, four brothers and two sisters, the latter article is correct, accepting this date as the time that they came to America, John and Oliver being born in this country. Robert or William, one of the two brothers that we have no record of, died young, we believe Robert, and did not come to America.

Boston, A.D. 1712, from whence they removed to and settled in Leicester, in the County of Worcester, Mass., where he hath a brother, Deacon Oliver Watson, now living. Mr. Watson came to this town, A.D. 1722, where by his industry he hath acquired a pretty handsome fortune.
